BRITISH NOTE WARNS AGAINST LENGTHY PARLEY

MAY RECALL U. S. TROOPS FROM RHINE

Withdrawal of American Army of Occupation Under Consideration at the White House

BUSINESSMEN WON'T AWAIT U. S. RATIFICATION OF PACT

Will Resume Peace Time Relations at Once Says Berlin Report

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Early withdrawal of American troops from the Rhine, following ratification of the peace treaty with Germany, is foreshadowed by authoritative information forthcoming from the White house Friday.

The Harding administration, it was stated, does not believe in adding to the burdens of Germany by continuing the expense upon Germany of maintaining forces of occupation any longer than is necessary.

It was pointed out that nothing in the treaty signed at Berlin Friday requires the withdrawal of the American troops which are occupying German soil under the terms of the armistice and of one of the sections of the Versailles treaty accepted by the United States in the peace pact with Germany.

U. S. Left Free to Choose

They can be maintained there pending fulfillment of treaty obligations by Germany, they can be withdrawn, and they can be sent back to Germany after having been withdrawn.

This is purely a question of policy, and the United States has full freedom to act in this matter as it sees fit. That this policy will be to withdraw the troops as soon as appears feasible after the ratification of the treaty, in order to lighten the burden of expense borne by Germany, is indicated by the statement made at the White house.

There are now 13,795 American troops, including officers, occupying the Coblenz bridgehead at an expense to Germany of about $1,000,000 a month. For the maintenance of these troops Germany now owes the United States $244,000,000.

Won't Await Ratification

BERLIN.—By The Associated Press.—American and German business firms will resume peace time relations immediately without waiting for ratification of the treaty signed here on Thursday, it is said in well informed industrial circles of this city. It is anticipated that commercial treaties will be negotiated and that consular service will be reconstructed within a brief period. Spanish diplomatic representatives here who have been in charge of American interests since February 3, 1917, will continue their duties in this respect.

RIOTING DISTRICT IN INDIA PLACED UNDER WAR LAW

London Becoming Anxious Over the Situation and Takes Steps to Quell Disorder

SITUATION IS REGARDED AS BEING EXTREMELY GRAVE

Serious Fighting Reported from Several Districts

MADRAS, India.—By The Associated Press.—The Malabar district of British India has been proclaimed a military area.

LONDON.—Owing to the serious character of the riots in the Malabar districts of British India and the possibility of a general spread of the disorders, the Daily Telegraph Saturday says it understands the government of India, with the concurrence of Edward Spencer Montagu, secretary of state for India, has decided to take action "against the prominent personages held responsible for the greater part of the recent troubles in India."

It is felt, says the newspaper, that the limit of patience has been reached by the Indian government. It is understood, it adds, that the authorities are fully prepared for fresh efforts to quell disorder should the preventative action now being taken not meet with success.

Mob Attacks Police

LONDON.—Conditions in the disturbed district south of Calicut, British India, are shown to be of considerable gravity, in an official statement issued at the India office here. This statement, based on a telegram from Madras, which was filed in that city early on Friday states that a mob of 2,000 made an attack on the police in the town of Tirur and later clashed with the Leinster platoon which dispersed the rioters with guns.

The cruiser Canopus arrived at Calicut Friday and the situation in that city is said to be quiet. Further south and east however, there have been a number of serious fights.

Looting Continues

BOMBAY, British India, Aug. 27.—By The Associated Press.—Looting by riotous natives in southern India still continues, according to a message from Calicut. A band of fanatics is reported to have entered an estate at Pullengode where a European named Eaton was surprised in his bungalow and beheaded. The bungalow then was burned. Eaton's wife had left the estate.

It is also reported that an inspector of special reserve police was murdered by Moplah rioters. His body was thrown into the river.

ARREST OHIO MAN FOR FRAUDULENT USE OF U. S. MAIL

CANTON, O.—Z. W. Davis, wealthy Canton and Cleveland manufacturer, was arrested Saturday on a charge of using the mails to defraud. Davis was released on $25,000 bond for his appearance in the federal court in Chicago.

Davis, who is 75 years of age, declared he will be vindicated. He admits having executed for negotiation notes to the amount of $36,500 but points out that few men of affairs have less paper on the market. Insofar as his notes were discounted they will be paid, he said.

Davis believes the $500,000 worth of notes bearing his alleged signature which were found by federal authorities in Milwaukee may be some notes nearly twenty years old which were issued when Davis was associated with C. W. French in the Canton, Akron and Youngstown Belt Line railroad. If the notes are not these, then they are forgeries, he said.

GALESBURG, Ill.—Announcement that Coach Sam Barry's Knox college basketball team will play a regular and a practice game with the University of Wisconsin five this season, was made here Saturday. MARSHAL FOCH TELLS U. S. AMBASSADOR HE WILL VISIT AMERICA

PARIS.—By The Associated Press.—Marshal Foch, unannounced, Friday walked into the American embassy here without formality, took a seat in the reception room and, like the ordinary caller, sent up his card asking to see Ambassador Herrick.

When the presence of the distinguished visitor became known a secretary immediately ushered him into the ambassador's office. Marshal Foch told Mr. Herrick that he had come to the embassy in person to say definitely that he was going to the United States.

"I also wanted to tell you," said the officer who commanded the allied armies during the war, "by word of mouth, instead of by letter or in any formal way, how deeply touched I have been by the echoes from America of my projected visit. I wanted to tell you how delighted I am that I am going."

BAVARIANS PROTEST REACTIONARY RULE OF THE AUTHORITIES

Demonstration Held Against High Prices and High-handed Methods of Officials

BERLIN.—By The Associated Press.—Demonstrations in Munich against high prices and alleged reactionary methods of the Bavarian authorities, participated in Friday night by 40,000 people, are announced in messages from Munich Saturday. One man was killed and one wounded in the progress of dispersing the demonstrators which was effected by the police and soldiers without serious trouble. The demonstration is described as being aimed in particular at Premier Kahr and Chief of Police Pochner.

When first news that the demonstration was brewing reached Berlin, fear was expressed that the Bavarian government faced a serious crisis as the radical parties are well organized and reported to be in a determined mood. The authorities had forbidden the holding of the demonstration.

Here in Berlin 7,000 workmen organized a procession Friday and marched to Brandenburg where former War Minister von Stein had been announced to speak under the auspices of the nationalist ex-soldiers' association. The workmen occupied the building in which the speech was to have been delivered and General von Stein left without delivering his address.

BRITISHER TO PICK GEORGES' OPPONENT IN LONDON MATCH

PARIS.—Georges Carpentier will be called upon to face an opponent in Albert hall, London, on December 2, says the sporting newspaper Auto. The man who will oppose him will be chosen by Major Wilson, the English fight promoter from four prominent heavyweights, Bob Martin, heavyweight champion of the A. E. F.; Frank Moran, the veteran pugilist; Bob McCormick, English light heavyweight, and Joe Beckett, whose defeat by Carpentier in 1919 provided a sensation for the sporting world.

The fight, the newspaper says, will be for twenty rounds with four ounce gloves.

S. MARKOS STORE ROBBED OF $40 BOY SCOUTS HELD

Two Members of Iowa Scout Camping Party Being Questioned at Central Station

MONEY IS TAKEN FROM REGISTER OF S. MARKOS

Theft Alleged to Have Occurred Friday Evening

ALTHOUGH they have not been definitely connected with the theft, two Boy Scouts, members of a scout camping party from Iowa located across the river, are being held at Central station pending investigation of the theft of $40 from the cash register of Salem Markos, dry goods and notion dealer at 211 Pearl street, about 6 o'clock Friday evening.

According to the report, Markos left the store in charge of his daughter, while he went to the Burlington depot to meet friends coming in on the evening train. In the meantime two Boy Scouts entered the store for the purpose of purchasing a pair of shoe strings. The daughter was said to have been in the store at the time the boys entered, but left to meet her father when she saw him coming from the depot after meeting the train.

Ringing up the amount of the purchase made by one of the boys, Markos discovered upon a count of the receipts that $40 in currency was missing from the "till." The youths were arrested and taken to Central station Friday evening, however, a search failed to reveal that either of the two scouts were in possession of the amount of money said to have been taken from the register, according to the report of the police.

Further investigation into the matter will be conducted by the police in an effort to identify the parties involved in the theft.

BRITISH OFFICIALS BEGIN INQUIRY INTO WRECKING OF ZR-2

Court Will Not Announce Findings Until Filed With British Government

HOWDEN, Eng.—By The Associated Press.—Formal investigation of the disaster which destroyed the dirigible ZR-2 on Wednesday afternoon and caused the deaths of more than forty of her crew, began here Saturday. Sir Hugh M. Trenchard, British air marshal, was in charge of the inquiry and a number of British and American officers were present to give testimony.

Plans for the investigation did not contemplate public sessions of court and it was believed probable that nothing would be given publication until after the findings of the court had been communicated to the British government.

The work of lifting the wreck of the ZR-2 from the Humber river continued Saturday. Two more bodies, those of A. L. Loftin, an American, who was acting as mechanic on board the ship, and Flight Sergeant A. P. Martin, a British member of the crew, were recovered Friday.

MORE NOTES SEIZED BY AGENTS PROBING BIG SWINDLE RING

CHICAGO, Ill.—Another $10,000,000 was added Saturday to the total of notes seized by federal agents investigating the alleged "swindle ring" headed by Charles W. French. John W. Sawken, who Wednesday found $9,050,000 in notes in a Cleveland Safety Deposit vault, brought the $10,000,000 additional to Chicago.

The notes are on the Ideal Tire & Rubber company of Cleveland, which is now in the hands of a receiver.

French, Charles W. Hawkins, Elmer M. Gerber, Charles K. Stroebel and the other defendants who have been brought here were arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Glass here today.

WON'T ACT ON DEBS CASE UNTIL TREATY IS O. K.'D—HARDING

WASHINGTON.—No decision regarding a pardon for Eugene V. Debs or a general amnesty for prisoners convicted under war-time laws, will be reached by President Harding until the peace treaty with Germany has been ratified, it was stated Saturday at the white house.

Attorney General Daugherty had announced earlier that he had completed his recommendations on the pardon of Debs and that he had planned to submit his recommendations to the president during the day. Officials refused to reveal the nature of the recommendations, but reports have been current in Washington that a pardon would be urged.

PERSHING AND HAAN ATTEND REUNION OF "RED ARROW" VETS

Senator Lenroot to Represent Wisconsin at Thirty-second Division Meeting

DETROIT, Mich.—The second annual reunion of the 32nd (Red Arrow) division, opened here Saturday with veterans present from all parts of the country. Michigan and Wisconsin men predominated, however, the division having been made up chiefly of men from these states.

Major General William G. Haan, who led the division in most of its activities in France, was here for the opening of the reunion and General Pershing is to greet the veterans Monday. Senator Irving L. Lenroot will officially represent Wisconsin. Lieutenant General Sir Harry Burstall is attending as the representative of Lord Byng, governor general of Canada.

Saturday was spent chiefly in informal reunions of "Buddies," registration, and most of the veterans planned to attend this afternoon's baseball game as guests of Frank Navin, president of the Detroit Americans.

Sunday, the third anniversary of the division's memorable attack on Juvigny, memorial services for dead comrades are to be held.

The divisional parade is set for Tuesday.

One thousand men from Milwaukee and surrounding country reached here this morning in a special train. They were led by Racine's 52 piece drum and bugle corps and received an enthusiastic reception when they marched to the reunion headquarters.

The number of Red Arrow men in the city at noon was more than 6,000 and others were arriving on every train. Delegations have arrived from Panama, Alaska and Brazil.

COMMUNISTS ENTER CAMPAIGN FOR CITY ELECTION IN GOTHAM

NEW YORK.—Communists in New York plan to enter their first political campaign this fall with a municipal ticket under the name of the Workers' League of Greater New York.

Candidates were selected at a convention attended by several hundred radicals Friday night, but it was announced petitions would be circulated to have their names placed on the ballot. Hostility to the socialist party was said by speakers to have inspired the move.

Benjamin Gitlow, former assemblyman, recently convicted of criminal anarchy, was nominated for mayor by his mother, and his candidacy unanimously approved by the convention.

One woman was placed on the ticket, Mrs. Rose Paster Stokes, for borough president of Manhattan.

STORY OF DEAFNESS "EXAGGERATED" IS COMMENT OF SOUSA

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—John Philip Sousa expressing himself much amused by recent reports that he had become so deaf that it was necessary for him to lead his band "by instinct" has sent the following telegram to a friend in Milwaukee:

"Mark Twain remarked on hearing that he was dead that the report was largely exaggerated. So is the one that my hearing is impaired. I can hear the faintest tinkle of the dinner-bell."

MILITANT MINERS MARCHING ON MINGO ARE TURNED BACK

Reported Headed Homeward in Compliance With Plea of Union Officials

SHOOTING REPORTED BETWEEN MINERS AND SHERIFF'S MEN

Army Attempting to Cross Into Logan County is Halted

RACINE, W. Va.—Brigadier General H. H. Bandholtz, U. S. A., investigating the miners' march from Marmet to Mingo for the war department, expressed the opinion upon his arrival here at 1:30 o'clock Saturday noon that the trouble was all over and the movement had been definitely abandoned. General Bandholtz, after addressing about 500 of the marchers, who were still here awaiting transportation to their homes, prepared to return at once to Charleston.

CHARLESTON, W. Va.—Charles F. Keeney, United Mine Workers' leader, and vanguard of miners marching from Marmet to Mingo, which Keeney turned back at Madison Friday under orders from Brigadier General Bandholtz, U. S. A., arrived in Charleston soon after 8 o'clock Saturday morning. At the same time General Bandholtz was starting from Charleston to go over the line of march and see that the "army" had actually disbanded and was going home.

The miners had left Madison by special train and it was expected they would lose no time in getting to the mining towns and villages from which they had set out more than a week ago for the rendezvous at Marmet.

In spite of the fact that the march was halted at Madison Friday afternoon and that Mr. Keeney said the miners would listen to his advice and abandon the enterprise, disquieting rumors began reaching Charleston at an early hour and increased as the day advanced.

Reinforcements Arriving

During last night two men, carrying cards from the United Mine Workers' local at Grandville, Vermilion county, Ill., appeared at district headquarters, persons in the office stated. They said they were the "advance guard of 700 union miners" on the way to join the men at Marmet and that twenty-three men from their local had come with them.

Police reports early Saturday were that Cheasapeake and Ohio men at South Charleston had declared about 2:00 men; mostly armed, and come on a freight train from the west shortly after midnight. They were said to have told railroad employes they were miners from Ohio and Illinois going to Marmet.

Halted at County Line

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—A large body of armed men seeking to enter Logan county was Saturday morning turned back by deputy sheriffs on the Boone-Logan county line, according to a statement given to the Associated Press over the long distance telephone by an official of Governor Morgan's office at Charleston. It was added that there had been no casualties, although many shots had been exchanged.

Shortly after two o'clock this morning rumors began to circulate that an engagement had been fought near Blair, close to the Boone county line. All efforts to confirm these rumors failed until communication was established with the governor's office.

It has not been determined whether the body of men engaged by the deputies was a part of the Marmet-Mingo marchers, who yesterday were persuaded by C. F. Keeney, president of district 17, United Mine Workers of America to abandon the march and return to their homes.

EASTERN HALF OF STATE HAS HEAVY RAINFALL FRIDAY

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Large sections of the down town business district were flooded, transportation was blocked and electric power lines all over the city put out of commission because of a heavy rain and electrical storm here Friday night. Several manufacturing plants were unable to operate for several hours. Heavy rains were general over Eastern Wisconsin, according to reports received here.

ORDERS SHIPS RETURNED

NEW YORK.—Federal Judge Manton Saturday ordered the receivers for the United States Mail Steamship company to return immediately to the shipping board nine chartered steamships which were seized by the board on the ground of nonpayment of rental and restored to the company by a temporary injunction.

SAYS IRELAND CANNOT LEAVE THE EMPIRE

British Premier Takes Firm Stand Against Prolonging Conversations Regarding Settlement

IRISH PARLIAMENT MEETING TO DISCUSS BRITISH NOTE

Will be Glad to Continue Negotiations Premier Tells De Valera

LONDON.—Ireland cannot be permitted to withdraw from the British empire. This is the outstanding feature of the note sent to Dublin Friday by Premier Lloyd George, following consideration by the cabinet of the whole Irish situation.

Mr. Lloyd George declared he would be glad to continue negotiations with Mr. De Valera, but warned the Irish leaders that a needless prolongation of the conversations might wreck the chance of an agreement and terminate the truce.

Follows the text of the Note:

"Sir: The British government is profoundly disappointed at your letter of Aug. 24, which was delivered to me yesterday. You write of conditions of a meeting between us as though no meeting had ever taken place. I must remind you, therefore, that when I asked you to meet me six weeks ago I made no preliminary conditions of any sort. You came to London on that invitation and exchanged views with me at three meetings of considerable length.

Approved by World

"The proposals that I made to you after these meetings were based upon full and sympathetic consideration of the views which you expressed. As I have already said they were not made in any haggling spirit. On the contrary, my colleagues and I went to the very limit of our powers in endeavoring to reconcile British and Irish interests. Our proposals have gone far beyond all precedent and they have been approved as liberal by the whole civilized world.

"Even in the quarters which have shown sympathy with the most extreme Irish claims they have been regarded as the utmost which the empire can reasonably offer or that Ireland can reasonably expect. The only criticism of them which I have yet heard outside of Ireland is from those who maintain our proposals out stepped both warrant and wisdom in their liberality.

Sees Slight Hope

"Your letter shows no recognition of this and further negotiations must I fear, be futile unless some definite progress is made towards the acceptance of a basis.

"You declare that our proposals involve the surrender of Ireland's whole national position and reduce her to subservience. What are the facts? Under the settlement which we have outlined Ireland would control every nerve fiber in her national existence. She would speak her own language, make her own religious life. She would have complete power over taxation and finance, subject only to an agreement for keeping trade and transport as free as possible between herself and Great Britain, her best market. She would have uncontrolled authority over education and all the moral and spiritual interests of her race, she would have it also over law and order and over land and agriculture, over conditions of labor and industry, over health and the home of the people and over her own land defense.

Free in Every Aspect

"She would in fact, within the shores of Ireland, be free in every respect national activity, national expression, and national development.

"The states of the American union are sovereign though they enjoy such a range of rights. And our proposals go even further, for they invite Ireland to take her place as a partner in the great commonwealth of free nations united by allegiance to the king.

"We consider that these proposals completely fulfill your wishes that the principle of 'government by consent of the governed' should be the broad guiding principle of settlement which your plenipotentiaries are negotiating.

England's Principle

That principle was first developed in England and it is the mainspring of representative institutions which she was the first to create. It was spread by her throughout the world and now is the very life of the British commonwealth. We could not have invited the Irish people to take their place in that commonwealth on any other condition, and we are convinced that through it we can heal the old mis-

STANDPATTISM RULES AT WASHINGTON SAYS CONGRESSMAN BECK

Common People Haven't a Show in Congress Declares Viroqua Man

MADISON, Wis.—That a majority of the present congress at Washington is a standpat crowd, working harmoniously in the interests of Big Business, was the statement of Congressman J. D. Beck, Viroqua, who came to Madison Saturday on his way to Viroqua. Mr. Beck came back to Wisconsin to visit his constituents during the recess of congress.

"It is time that the common people of this country, the farmers and laboring men put their eyes on congress," said Congressman Beck. "I have been studying politics for a long time but I have never seen such an exemplification of standpatism controlled by Big Business as is now being shown by the majority of the men in congress and the administration.

"A man who wants to say something for the farmers and laboring men or who has some bills to shift the burden of taxes upon the big fellows, is practically refused a hearing. The secretary of the National Farmers' union, one of the representatives of the great productive organizations of this country, was refused a hearing in congress the other day. Perhaps this is quite natural because standpatism is in the saddle in Washington. Wealth has the plumb from the war and wealth is doing everything to protect its ill-gotten gains.

"Why was the soldiers' bonus defeated? It was defeated by the big business interests of this country who clamored to have the boys go to war but did not pay them back. They might take some of the $22,000,000,000 that corporations made during the war to pay the soldier bonus out of that."

There is a recess of congress at the present time because the house has put over big administration bills and these measures are now pending before the senate where they will be given a hearing during the next four weeks. It is doubtful whether Senator La Follette will be able to return to Wisconsin during the recess because he will be kept in Washington attending these hearings on financial measures. Senator La Follette is in the best of health "and is fighting the gang as vigorously as if he were a youth of 21 years."

RED ARROWS URGED TO OBTAIN MILEAGE ORDERS FROM STAATS

County Clerk Staats announces that all members of the Red Arrow division, which will hold a reunion in Detroit, Mich., Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, may obtain identification certificates at his office which will entitle them to reduced fare to the reunion. A number of La Crosse service men are planning on attending the reunion. The 128th Infantry will have its headquarters at the Hotel Wolverine and the 121st Machine Gun battalion will hold forth at the Hotel Norton. Both of these units were from La Crosse.

Consistent Attitude

"What are your opinions on this momentous question?"

"I haven't changed my mind," replied Senator Sorghum.

"But I don't know what your opinions were."

"I mean I haven't changed my mind about refusing to go on record on the subject until my constituents make it absolutely necessary."

STATE TO INSTRUCT RURAL COMMUNITIES IN CARE OF BABIES

"Child Welfare Truck" Fitted up by Board of Health to Tour State Next Spring

MADISON, Wis.—The state plans to bring in modern instruction and facilities for improving child health, commencing early next spring, it is announced by the board of health Saturday. A "child welfare truck" is being specially fitted up as an adjunct to the bureau of child welfare and public health nursing.

Applications for the truck have already been made by a dozen counties scattered throughout the state. The vehicle will be fitted especially for the physical examination of children, with two dressing rooms, cabinets and space for literature and supplies, and will be well heated and lighted. It will be accompanied by a physician, nurse and driver.

The health truck, according to the state board, will become a highly advantageous aid to child welfare demonstrations often held at fairs. It is proposed to send it to the state fair and as many county fairs as possible.

The demand for a car of this type for promoting the health of children in neglected portions of the state where physicians and nurses are few and health education is limited, has been made known for several years, the board says. The plan has been ardently supported by women's civic organizations and is in line with the federal children's bureau program of reaching remote districts with the best thought and practice developed in the promotion of the health of infants and children.

SOLDIER HOSPITAL TO BE READY FOR USE BEFORE WINTER

Construction of New Buildings for Accommodation of Shell-shocked Vets to be Pushed

MADISON, Wis.—The state will be prepared to give special care and treatment before winter to 234 shell-shocked and mentally diseased soldiers of the last war in new quarters at the Memorial Hospital, Farwell's Point, overlooking Lake Mendota. Work is about to start on construction of the buildings provided for in an appropriation of $250,000 by the legislature.

Erection of the new state hospital will be pushed to the utmost just as soon as the road, which will be started next week, is built up to the beautiful site of the new institution, J. G. D. Mack, state engineer, said Saturday. Time up to the present has been needed to complete a thorough survey of the land which has never before been opened.

Located on the wooded Farwell's point at the edge of Lake Mendota, the hospital is declared to be placed on the most beautiful site in the state. It is said to form an ideal home for those suffering from mental disease, with facilities available for all varieties of sport and for gardening.

Special care has been necessary in designing the layout of the buildings, Mr. Mack said, in order to avoid destruction of the great number of Indian mounds of marked historical value which are scattered about in interesting designs. None of these will be in any way disfigured, he said.

The soldier hospital, of most modern design and equipment, will be entirely separated from the Mendota hospital for the insane, with no connection between the institutions, except through the availability of psychiatric specialists. Major W. F. Lorenz, in charge of the Mendota Psychiatric institution where 130 soldiers are now receiving treatment, will be in charge of the Memorial Hospital.

The soldiers will aid in construction of their new home supplying much of the labor needed. This will enable the men to receive the benefit of the occupation, at the same time allowing expenditure of funds for other purposes, Mr. Mack said.

Mentally diseased Wisconsin soldiers continue to be received at the Mendota hospital, and it is expected that as soon as the new quarters are completed, practically all of the men will be brought here.

Where Jap Shoe Pinches

THE Japanese question as it comes to the disarmament conference is a big subject to put in a nutshell, but perhaps its fundamentals can be sketched on a thumb nail.

Japan's need of "a place in the sun" is the big issue. It is back of Japanese entry into Manchuria and Siberia and her exploitations in China. It is back of Jap emigration to the Philippines and her attempts to expand in the United States. Crowded Japan must have more room to grow, or Jap ambitions for world power must suffocate.

Two means of expansion are possible: one is penetration such as is described in the above paragraph; the other is military, and perhaps Japanese troops in Siberia were laying the ground for this means. We strike at the former in our exclusion acts, we protested against the latter in the case of Siberia.

Japan does not propose to enter a conference bound by its terms to the abandonment of both conquest and penetration, for that would render her always a limited power of small territory. That is why she made reservation against discussing questions "of special interest to one" rather than to all the powers, and against the disturbance of established things. She might give up the means of military conquest and depend upon penetration upon a scale to amount to colonization; she might surrender the right to penetrate in some quarters. But she will give up both only as a matter of the most extreme necessity.

Among the questions already presented the discussion of which Japan will protest, are Yap, Shantung, and in general the open door. America is consistent in relation to these. Our insistence as to Yap is merely that Japan shall not monopolize this vital cable point, but that it shall be internationalized—the open door. As to Shantung, we merely do not subscribe, but back of this is the idea of ultimate Jap control of China with its tremendous resources of wealth and man-power. The general question of the open door affects other nations as well as ourselves. When Root, as secretary of state, laid down the rule of the open door, this matter seemed to have been settled. But the Lansing treaty in which the latter recognized a "special" interest of Japan in the Chinese coast has reopened the case, inasmuch as Japan has interpreted "special" as meaning "predominating."

That Japan should aspire to become an Island empire, with a hold on Asiatic states, the Philippines and Siberia similar to the dominion government of the island empire of Great Britain is natural enough, and of course it finds its justification in the British precedents. Nor is it strange that Japan should claim in the far east a special interest like that which we have set up for ourselves upon the American continent in the Monroe Doctrine. But there is all the difference in the world between the Japanese Monroe Doctrine which, secretly perhaps, aims to monopolize the far east, and our Monroe Doctrine which merely notifies the world to keep hands off the territory and free republics of the Americas. Japanese notions of a Monroe Doctrine may be best seen in Korea, for there Japan already has its Irish question.

All this means as much to the Caucasian world as it does to Japan. More immediately, it means an even field in far eastern trade and production, as against the building up of a Japanese monopoly in these things. More remotely it means the impregnation of the far east with white civilization, as against the building up in there of a swarthy rival civilization which in time might successfully challenge the white man's supremacy. Nor can we afford to shrug at a Japanized Asia come into military and industrial competence. There are vast hordes outnumbering the pale-faces many to one, and Chinese skill and ingenuity, tested thousands of years ago, would rapidly rise to dangerous proportions under Japanese influence.

Thus one sees that, great as is the problem of disarmament in itself, the disarmament conference will be brought face to face with a racial problem so great that disarmament may count for naught unless the dominant powers of today are prepared to enter into an agreement for policing the world against the menace of the imperialistic gun-toter of the far east. We, on the frontier of the yellow peril, may live to wonder at the shut-eyed diplomacy which led our representatives to "protect" us against "European complications" by destroying the famous Article X. It is America, on the front line of the race war if such there shall be, who must meet the one really tremendous emergency of "Asiatic complications" that may one day test the world's fibre, and to whom the pact was essential. For the loan of a few ships and policemen we were offered the contract of the civilized nations to back us when the yellow inundation reached our shores, and we rejected it. However, such is the necessity of the white races that in all probability, sooner or later, in some form or another, it will be revived with American endorsement.

Germany Comes Back

HIGH authorities warn the world to prepare for an up-hill battle with German competition. We knew it before the war, when "Made in Germany" was the world's most famous label. The assumption, if it existed anywhere, that the most formidable nation in industry and trade would be out of business for years after the war, is said to be proving vastly misleading. The other day a Cleveland manufacturer making an article costing him $96 to manufacture, and sold at $125, was thunderstruck to receive from a reliable German firm an offer to manufacture his product for him and lay it down f. o. b. Cleveland at $25. We may keep that machine out of the country with a tariff wall, but we can't keep German manufacture out of other customer countries. We must compete on even terms there, if indeed we do not have to climb a retaliatory tariff wall, which seems to mean that we must get down lower or be satisfied to live upon the revenues of home consumption.

How Germany is doing it is a question which amazes many. The Germans were always a frugal and industrial people. They know how to make and to sell things as do few other nations. It is said that enforced disarmament is one secret of their success, because all capital and energy is released for private enterprise. Another reason is that the German employer has gone some ways in a partnership of capital and labor. Organizations of men and employers to get things done during the war have been continued in peace, so that Germany has been practically strikeless for over a year. The existence of a great community of interest, to pay the debt and erect a new basis for German pride of prowess, doubtless has helped. But more than this is the German habit of thought that whatever the thing is, it can be done. Were American capital and labor to spend as much intellectual energy and financial means in trying to work out their problems jointly as they do in fighting each other, they might arrive at something practical. In the past we haven't done things that way, because every American knows that he is right and none yields a tittle. But we're a young dog among the nations, and perhaps under the stress of an overseas necessity now hard upon us, we may learn new tricks.

VILLAINS AND HORSE-THIEVES

"Landlords are villains!" announced Hilda Crandell with conviction.

"I won't argue with you," returned Ethel Klinger.

Hilda was reading a letter the postman had just left. Ethel was deep in a musical magazine.

"They're hogs!" added Hilda, as she read on.

"That statement will never start a quarrel between you and me," observed Ethel, turning a page of the magazine.

"They're horsethieves and murderers!" raved Hilda. "No owner of an apartment house will ever get to heaven."

"Judge not that ye be not judged," warned Ethel.

"Look here, Ethel!" shrilled Hilda rising from her chair and stamping a foot. "If you knew what this letter meant you would not be so indifferent."

Ethel laid aside the magazine and looked up, smiling. She was the smiling kind.

"Well, what does it mean?" she inquired sweetly.

"It means just this," said Hilda savagely. "This is a letter from old Smithers, and it announces a $20 raise in rent. It also tells us that no phonographs may be played in this building after eight o'clock at night and that young lady tenants must send young men callers home at half-past eight."

Ethel forgot to smile. Her eyes blazed.

"I've lost my indifference!" she said. "I sanction all you have said. Old Smithers goes to bed every night at eight o'clock and that's why he orders music stopped at that hour. He's an old grouch that never had a girl look at him without scowling, so he makes us oust our men friends at the hour when they usually arrive. I mean your men friends, Hilda, because I never have any. I have to go into the bedroom every other night so you may entertain in the living room. Just the same, I might have a beau some night, so, you see, this latest edict affects me. You know, too, that I love music and that I don't get home from work until half past seven. We might as well sell the phonograph. And the rent—of course, that's the worst blow of all. It makes a hundred per cent. raise in the last year. Yes, Hilda, I've lost my indifference. But what can we do? There's no place to move."

Hilda dropped into a chair.

"Guess we'll have to grin and bear it," she mourned. "We'll go without those new dresses to meet the raise, and we'll resign ourselves to single blessedness the rest of our lives."

"Just so old Smithers can enjoy the comforts of his grouchy bachelorhood," added Ethel. "It's unfortunate that he lives right under us; otherwise we might forget some of his orders now and then. I wonder how he gets away with these things. He doesn't own the building does he?"

"No; at least, I understand that he doesn't. But that makes no difference. The owners are worse than their agents. Well, it simply means more economy for us, so the owner can have more luxury."

Ethel agreed, but the very next day she fell from grace. On her way to the car line from the office where she worked, she passed a phonograph shop with a display of records in the window. They were all grand opera selections and were offered at a bargain. She could not resist the present temptation and she spent five hard-earned dollars in the shop, and carried away five records.

From the trolley car she transferred to the subway and got into a crowded car. It had scarcely started from the station before it came to a sudden stop and the cry of "fire" went up. In some manner the doors became thrown open, and the panic-stricken crowd surged out.

Ethel felt that she would be crushed to death, for she was short and those about her were tall. Once out of the car however, she detached herself from the crowd and started running along the track, holding the precious records high in one hand to prevent their destruction.

Her arm was caught in a firm grasp and she was jerked backward. A tall young man, with twinkling eyes, was holding her.

"Just in time!" he exclaimed. "Do you know, young lady, you were just about to step on the third rail? The rest of the crowd thought about it, panic-stricken though they were, and kept clear. Don't you know it would have meant instant death?"

Ethel turned pale.

"Thank—thank you," she stammered, "for saving my life."

"Oh, it's all right," assured the young man. "I think I had better take charge of you, though. Let me take that bundle—phonograph records, aren't they?"

"Yes," she breathed, relinquishing the burden.

He escorted her safely back to the station and they made their way to the street. The man hailed a taxicab.

"What are you doing?" Ethel inquired.

"Taking you home," he returned simply. "Something is wrong in the subway, but you must get home or you'll—you'll be late for dinner, or something."

There was no use dissenting. The man had a commanding way with him, and besides he had saved her life. It would not do to be rude.

Ethel arrived home slightly ahead of time, and the man got out of the taxi with her.

"Here are the records," he said, handing them to her. "What are they—jazz?"

"I should say not!" she retorted indignantly. "They're grand opera."

"Good. I just love grand opera, and I'm sure I'd like to hear these. I have a lot of nerve, I know, but couldn't we have a concert?"

"But the landlord—" objected Ethel. "He won't—oh, all right. We can play for a while. Won't you come in?"

"I will," said the young man.

If Hilda was surprised to see Ethel with a gentleman friend she did not show it.

"This is Mr.—Mr.—" Ethel began in confusion.

"Langford," he prompted. The introduction taken care of, Hilda retired to the bedroom with a magazine.

Ethel took off her wraps and started the phonograph. All the new records were tried out, but the visitor was not satisfied.

"Let's hear some more," he pleaded.

Ethel's wrist watch told her it was eight o'clock.

"I'm afraid I can't," she said. "There's a new rule that no phonographs can be played after eight o'clock, and I'll have to ask you to leave soon, because young women can't entertain young men after half-past eight."

The young man's eyes opened wide.

"You must have a tyrant for a landlord," he observed. "Well, let's take a chance. I'll assume the responsibility."

"But he'll raise our rent again," Ethel insisted. "He's just tacked on another twenty, and there's no telling when it will stop."

But the caller had that commanding way with him, and he insisted, so the new rules were broken.

At nine o'clock there came a loud knock on the door.

"Smithers!" exclaimed Ethel, shutting off the phonograph.

"I'll attend to him," said Mr. Langford, and he went to the door and opened it.

Sure enough, it was Smithers, and he was fairly grinding his teeth until he saw who had opened the door. Then he suddenly became humble.

"Something you wished?" asked Langord, suavely.

"No—no, I guess not," stammered Smithers. "I'm sorry—I didn't—"

"Didn't know I was here, eh? Well, let me tell you, Smithers, you move just as soon as you can find a place. I'm going to run my own apartment house hereafter. And the phonographs are going to keep going till mid-night, and young ladies can use their own judgment about sending their guests home—and rents are going to be cut in two. "Good night!"

And, now, in regard to Ethel and Mr. Langord, they—well, this is a love story.

ONE-REEL YARNS

LUCY'S LITTLE SISTER

With a loud snort and a prolonged groan, the Smithville local pulled out of the station. Lucy stood on the platform and waved to her mother till she was but a dim speck in the distance. Then turning she entered the train and walked down the aisle tugging her heavy suitcase along behind her.

A shabby woman with a tiny baby in her arms made room for Lucy to sit down beside her. Lucy was the kind of a girl that always made friends with every one.

"Oh, what an adorable little baby!" she cried, as she reached out and touched one of its tiny pink hands. "I love little girls. What is her name?"

"William," replied the mother curtly.

"Oh!" Lucy gasped, somewhat confused to find the little girl was a boy. "But I like little boys, too," she added as an after-thought.

The mother seemed not to pay any attention to her, so after a few more attempts to start conversation Lucy decided that she wasn't a very friendly woman and lapsed into silence. But she still cast admiring glances in the baby's direction. The poor little thing could not be blamed for its mother's faults.

After they had ridden for about half an hour in silence, broken only by occasional lusty crows from William, who evidently had not inherited his mother's taciturn disposition, the woman turned to Lucy with a smile.

"Would you like to hold the baby for a little while?" she asked. "I want to go out on the platform and get some air."

"Oh, yes, indeed," she exclaimed. "I'd love to hold him."

She settled herself comfortably and held out her arms. The woman carelessly dumped William in her lap.

"I'll be back in a few minutes," she said.

Lucy held the baby for a long time. He was heavier than she had thought he would be and her arms began to ache. She wished that his mother would take him again.

The train had stopped several times, but still the mother did not come back. Finally the conductor came along.

"The next station is yours," he said to Lucy. "I'll be back to help you off with your little sister."

"But he isn't my little sister," Lucy explained. "He's a boy; besides he belongs to that lady who was sitting here."

"Why that woman got off at a station over an hour ago," said the conductor.

THE DANCING DWARF

If you want to have some fun at your next party try having a dancing dwarf perform for your guests. It is very amusing and easy to arrange.

All the guests but two are sent from the room. These take their places behind the table. One stands close to the table, his arms in front of him, so that the fingers rest on the table. Boots or shoes and stockings are put on his arms to give the appearance of feet. A long dark cloak is thrown over his shoulders, completely covering the second player, who stands behind. He furnishes the arms of the dwarf by thrusting his out in front. The face of the dwarf should be disguised before the other guests are called back in the room. He will then perform any feat they ask for—sing a song, make a speech, or prophesy the future of any person who desires it.

After each, he should end by a wild dance, performed by the hands and arms of the person standing behind. The light should be turned down somewhat and the audience kept straight in front of the table, to keep the illusion at its best.

Answer to yesterday's "When a boy falls into the water, what is the first thing he does?"—He gets wet.

"Mother, may I go with Papa?"

"No, dear, you are too young to listen to your father play golf."

"OH, MOTHER," ASKED MARY—

"Oh, Mother," asked Mary, "don't you just love to hear Aunt Clara talk? I think she has the loveliest voice of any one I know. I could sit and listen to her talk all day. I don't know why it is I like her voice so much. Why is it some people have so much prettier voices than others?"

"Yeh," chimed in Bob, "and why is it that Irene Mathers has a voice like a file? I don't see how you can stand to hear her talk, Mary, it sets my teeth on edge."

"Yes, Mother, why is it?" asked Mary.

"Your aunt naturally has a pretty voice," explained their mother, "but that isn't all. If she had taken no better care of her voice than Irene does it would be just as rasping and ugly."

"Why, how do you take care of your voice?" Mary asked in surprise. "I never knew what you had to take care of your voice in order to have a pretty one."

"Most people do not," laughed Mrs. Miller, "but it is true nevertheless. You know that when you get cross or angry your voice becomes loud and harsh and a higher pitch. The voice is the index of the mind. It shows whether you are good natured or fretful. Cultivate a sweet temper and you will be taking care of your voice. I can never remember Aunt Clara losing her temper even when she was a girl."

"Gee," said Bob, "when I tease Mary then I am helping to spoil her voice, because it makes her cross. My, I'll never do it again, she might get a voice like Irene."

"Oh, go on," laughed Mary, "if I wasn't afraid of spoiling my voice I'd say something nasty to you right now."

Parables of Safed the Sage

THE PARABLE OF THE TABLE

HERE was a day when I entered into a Restaurant. And the Headwaiter, who was a Person of Distinction, whose name I should probably have found in the Blue Book if not in Burke's Peerage, showed unto me a seat at a Table against the wall.

And I said unto him, What is the matter with that Table in front of the Window?

And he said, I will seat you there, sir, if you prefer.

And I said, I prefer.

And he seated me there.

Now I understand the thoughts and intents of his heart. For he was keeping that seat by the Window for Two persons, who would be likely to give a Larger Tip than a man who was eating alone.

So I sat at the Table by the window, even though I ate my morsel alone, which Job thanked God he had not done.

And I looked out, and I beheld a cross-section of human life. For there passed the window a Child in a Baby-cab, and I thought a loving mother. And there passed by an Hearse, and I meditated for a moment upon the dignity of sorrow and the perpetual need of comfort and the solemn mystery of death.

And I beheld school-boys pushing each other off the walk and laughing as they gave and took. And I beheld men going to their labor, and others wandering care-free and in no haste to move ahead.

And there rolled before me a moving-picture show called Human Life, and I sat where I could see it as I stirred the Sugar in my Coffee.

And the more I saw, the better I felt about life. For in the main the lives of the men and women that passed were of value to the world, and their faces were not the faces of folk who were down and out.

And I considered that all of them had their burdens, but were meeting life with resolution and hope, and none of them was free from care, but most of them were either happy or putting up a good bluff.

And the day was brighter for me because I had my seat at the window. And I said, Behold thus will I ever seek to sit where I can look out on life as it passeth, with sympathy and respect and a friendly thought.

And I considered that among all the hundreds of men and women who passed by that day as I sat before the window, there was not one who wished me ill, but there were many who would have been kind to me had I asked it of them.

Now, as I was using the finger-bowl, I reminded myself that the waiter had probably been holding that table for a Better Tip than I had intended to give. Therefore did I increase my customary tip, for the seat was worth the money.

ARGENTINE MEETS IMMIGRANTS WITH A WARM WELCOME

Government Even Feeds and Lodges Them While Helping them to Get Jobs

BUENOS AIRES.—While the United States is decreasing the number of immigrants admitted into the country, Argentina, with thousands of fertile acres that have never felt a plow, is welcoming them with open arms, and is even feeding and lodging them while helping them to find employment.

After setting foot in Argentina the immigrant is welcomed into a spotless, comfortable hotel where, in addition to being supplied free of charge with every personal necessity and convenience, he is taught by means of motion pictures and lectures something of the new land in which he is to make his home and is aided, when possible, to find employment. On deciding upon his destination within the country, the immigrant is supplied with free transportation to that place.

While the majority of immigrants arriving in the country are Spaniards and Italians, Germans are now arriving, together with some from other countries. Although the Germans come here third-class on account of the low value of the mark, many of them are skilled workers and even professional men. They bring with them quantities of machinery and equipment with which to start their new life.

The Unicorn

The unicorn which assists the lion in upholding the British Royal coat of arms bears the reputation of being entirely mythical. But the truth it has an actual prototype in the chiru, an antelope of western Thibet and Hindustan. By right the chiru has two horns, but it is of so pugnacious a disposition that it often loses one of them.

The use of splints for repairing broken limbs was known to the prehistoric dwellers of Arizona.

TURKISH MEN REFUSE TO LOOK ON WOMEN APPEARING UNVEILED

Still Maintain Old Custom Despite Efforts of Workers for Freedom of Turk Women

ANGORA, — Turkish men still refuse to look upon unveiled Turkish women when passing them in the streets or on the roads, despite the attempt of the latter to adopt the preachments of Halide Hanum and other workers for the freedom of woman in Asia Minor.

"According to our customs, it is impolite to flirt in public or address or look on the face of our women, and I can't break the custom," explained a Turkish officer travelling with the correspondent.

In the Nationalist capital of Angora Halide Hanum Mufide Ferid Hanum, the author and wife of the former Minister of Finance, and many other women who came out from Constantinople to support the Nationalist movement, go about the streets or ride horseback with their veils turned back and folded into a handsome head dress, modelled after the Russian style.

But outside of Angora, despite the example set by American women of charity organizations, or of the example of Greek and Armenian women, most of the Turkish women strictly maintain the old custom.

This applies not only to women of the households but also to the many women seen working in the fields or along the roads, driving ox carts or donkeys laden with army supplies, or wheat being exported to Russia.

The custom of veiling has long been modified to the extent that the face may be shown freely to the men of the village or of the party with whom the women may be working or travelling, but so soon as a stranger, whether Turk or European approaches, the veil is drawn. If the stranger is a Turk he looks straight ahead, as if the women were not present. If the European or American turns his head to catch a glimpse of the women, they hurriedly pull the veil closer, so only the eyes can be seen. The older the women, the closer the veil is drawn.

As the pretty gauze or thin cloths of pre-war days, white, blue, black or brown, cannot be had, the veils are often of coarse white cotton, and in the case of the working women, the cloth may be a stiff heavy cotton which serves as a sun bonnet. Sometimes the headpiece drops to the waist or farther and can scarcely be distinguished from the loose, flowing garments so characteristic of the Orient. If the wearer be very poor, the veil and other garments may be but a crazy quilt thing of patches of all colors and thicknesses, pathetically mended and browned by sun and weather.

PENSION LAW TO BE IN OPERATION WITH OPENING OF SCHOOL

Meeting of Three Administrative Boards Will be Held Soon Says Secretary

MADISON, Wis.—The first meeting of the three administrative boards governing the reorganized $1,000,000 teachers' retirement fund will be held within the next two weeks, R. E. Loveland, secretary, said today. He reports that there will be a number of questions of policy to be passed on by the boards, at that time.

The teachers' retirement fund will be in full working order when school opens in the fall, according to the secretary, who says that he has been getting the machinery in order wherever the law left no question of policy.

Levy of an additional one-sixth of the present income tax rates has been made by the tax commission on 1920 incomes, to provide funds for operation of the new law which requires an expenditure of $1,000,000 annually. This amount will be collected with the current taxes.

Listen and Learn

Many able men are great talkers, but they got the information which makes them interesting talkers by doing a great deal of listening earlier in their lives.

When you listen, listen with both your ears, and with your mind intent on the messages that they convey to it.

Think about what you hear. If you get new ideas follow them up with reading and investigation.

Don't take everything you hear for gospel, but if it sounds important investigate it. In that way you will get new ideas, and exercise your mind. And only a mind that is in constant exercise is ever in condition to produce when the time for production is at hand.—John Blake, in Chicago News.

Two American Brides

It was rather a strange coincidence that two daughters of the little American town of Baltimore, Elizabeth Patterson and Mary Caton, neighbors and contemporaries, should have married brothers of two of the most formidable characters in modern history, —Napoleon Bonaparte, the self-styled conqueror of the world, and the Duke of Wellington, his conqueror.—Virginia Tatnall Peacock.

FRECKLES THEY ARE FORCED TO IT! BY BLOSSER

In The MOVIES

AT THE THEATERS TODAY

Rivoli—Jackie Coogan in "Peck's Bad Boy"; singing prologue; comedy, "Edgar Takes the Cake"; Beyerstedts' orchestra.

Riviera—Jubilee Girls in "Easy and Cohn's Troubles", Ina Claire in "Polly With a Past"; comedy, "The Ladies' Pet"; Riviera orchestra.

Majestic—Wanda Hawley in "The House That Jazz Built"; vaudeville, four Gray sisters; Blough and Austin; Charlie Chaplin in "Easy Street"; Majestic orchestra.

Casino—Edith Roberts in "The Fire Cat"; Century comedy, "Playmates."

Strand—Joe Moore and Eileen Sedgwick in "Love's Battle"; Fox News.

"PECK'S BAD BOY"—RIVOLI

The winning smile of the inimitable little Jackie Coogan and the boyish pranks he plays in the title role of "Peck's Bad Boy" are still drawing capacity crowds to the Rivoli theater. No other child actor has been received with such enthusiasm as the little six-year-old star in this screen epic of boyhood days. Young and old alike are drawn to it—the young to revel in the mischievous fun of the "bad boy" and the old to live over again their own childhood days. "The Kid" found its way into the hearts of the picture-going public, and "Peck's Bad Boy" has also won a permanent lodging in the same place.

"POLLY WITH A PAST"—RIVIERA

Ina Claire repeated on the screen of the Riviera theater last evening the success she made in the David Belasco stage production of "Polly With a Past," by George Middleton and Guy Bolton. From the title announcing the name of the production until the final iris the audience felt and enjoyed thoroughly the spell of Miss Claire's individual and piquant personality; and lived with the bewitching heroine of the play her highly delightful adventures. All the gay brilliance of the stage play has been caught by the Metro camera, due to the intelligent adaptation by June Mathis, and the master hand of Maxwell Karger, director general, who staged and supervised personally the production of the piece. The picture will be presented again today. The Jubilee Girls in "Easy and Cohn's Troubles" will also be presented.

WANDA HAWLEY—MAJESTIC

Every salaried man is looking for a better job, but sometimes a better job spells domestic ruin, when the better salary that comes with it permits Friend Wife to degenerate from a brisk, energetic pal and home-maker into a lazy and flabby jazz fiend. That's the way it worked out for the dismayed hero of "The House That Jazz Built," the brilliant domestic comedy drama now playing at the Majestic theater for the last times tonight.

It may be hard for the picture fan to visualize pretty Wanda Hawley as a flabby jazz fiend, but with no less a personage that Penrhyn Stanlaws, the distinguished American illustrator, to assist her at the difficult make-up, Miss Hawley achieves a veritable triumph of interpretation in her "fat" scenes. Two vaudeville acts are on the same bill.

FAIRBANKS AT RIVOLI SUNDAY

An optical feast is promised to picture patrons when Douglas Fairbanks' new photo-feature, "The Nut," opens next Sunday for a three days' run at the Rivoli theater. For originality and novelty of treatment, this picture is said to excel anything yet attempted by the ingenious "Doug." Although no announcement has been made of the exact nature of the photoplay, it is understood to provide a new type of characterization for the popular star. "The Nut" deals with the adventures of an eccentric young inventor who falls in love with a girl in New York's historic Greenwich Village. "Doug's" adventures as a gay Lothario are said to involve some of the most amazing and comical complications ever shown upon the screen.

VODVIL AT MAJESTIC SUNDAY

Beginning with this Sunday's vaudeville the Majestic will begin to get better acts as more of the Orpheum houses are opening for the coming season and more good acts will be available. Two of the headline acts for tomorrow are as follows: George Lovett, the mental marvel and his band of seven in "Concentration" a real mystery embracing music, science and mirth, introducing Miss Ruth Templeton, the girl with the "X Ray mind and Anne Brown, the Mystic Nightingale and a band of incomparable musicians. The other feature act is Mr. and Mrs. Perkins Fisher in an act that has always been a great favorite to the vaudeville fans of La Crosse, namely a good rural or "Rube" comedians. Both Mr. and Mrs. Fisher have done rube characterization for a good many years in the larger Orpheum houses. The act that they will present at the Majestic is a quaint rural skit especially written for them by Ezra Kendall entitled "The Half Way House." For the feature photoplay on this program the Majestic will present "Man Trackers" a rousing story of two human men, a splendid woman, the great white wilderness, love, jealousy, real courage which all goes to make a great picture.

"LOVE'S BATTLE"—STRAND

Joe Moore and Eileen Sedgwick are given excellent support in "Love's Battle," at the Strand today.

A capable cast of players were selected to interpret the various roles in this production. G. A. Williams, who plays the part of Sheriff Hamilton, will be recalled as having appeared in a great number of western and outdoor pictures. It is estimated that he has played the role of sheriff in over a hundred productions. Before he entered the theatrical field Mr. Williams was a sheriff for a number of years in Arizona. During that time, which was in the late eighties, he encountered many of the notorious outlaws and had many a hand-to-hand encounter with bad men of that state. He not only knows the type well, but plays the part of sheriff with a realism that is refreshing to those who are really familiar with this character of the west.

"THE FIRE CAT"—CASINO

Depths of screen villainy are believed to have been reached by Walter Long, in "The Fire Cat," the Universal photodrama at the Casino today. Long is remembered for his work as the condemned murderer in "Go and Get It," as the brutal skipper in "What Women Love," and as The Baboon in Frank Mayo's feature, "Tiger True."

Social Action and Affection

Among the delusions which at different periods have possessed themselves of the minds of large masses of the human race, perhaps the most curious—certainly the least creditable—is the modern "soi-disant" science of political economy, based on the idea that an advantageous code of social action may be determined irrespectively of the influence of social affection.—Ruskin.

KNUTSON MAKES GOOD PROGRESS IN FIXING UP LABOR DISPUTES

New Commissioner Has Settlement of Two Long-Standing Strikes to His Credit

PLANTS SHUT DOWN TO KILL THE UNIONS KNUTSON CLAIMS

Mutual Understanding Essential to Industrial Peace, He Says

MADISON, Wis.—Success in settling industrial disputes which have tied up Wisconsin industries is dependent on the complete understanding of the viewpoint held by both the working men and the employers, Reuben G. Knutson, new member of the industrial commission said Saturday in commenting on the employment situation in the state.

Mr. Knutson recently came into prominence through his accomplishments in securing a satisfactory settlement of big strikes in Rhinelander pulp mills, and in a Racine manufacturing establishment, which had been tied up for over a year, with hundreds of men out of work.

A former organizer of the labor and trades council of La Crosse, and a member of the executive committee of the State Federation of Labor, Mr. Knutson had his nomination strenuously opposed in the senate when it came for confirmation. Claim was made that his selection would break down the tradition of a non-partisan commission.

"I am glad now that this fight was waged over my confirmation," he said. "It has given me an opportunity to show that the objection was unfounded, although the publicity did give me an uphill task.

"The general impression was apparently that I was a radical with horns and cloven hoofs, a person to be feared. The experience since then though has cleared up the situation, it seems to me, and my work as head of the employment department is proving helpful.

"Wisconsin is experiencing but little trouble from the fight that was started a little over a year ago for the open shop. Lockouts have generally given way to shut-downs, which are causing a serious unemployment situation.

"Evidently the employers in many instances propose to gain the same end through closing down their plants that they formerly attempted, often unsuccessfully, through lockouts, and general fights for the open shop. In each instance it is an attempt to break up the unions.

"Milwaukee is trying to solve its problem of unemployment where 35,000 men are out of work, by bringing together all those concerned who present suggestions. Recent meetings have brought out suggestions that I believe, if earnestly applied, would do much to relieve the existing situation.

"When tried out in that city, the commission will watch their progress and have recommendations for other localities of the state.

"In any event there must be mutual understanding between employers and employes. The industrial commission intends to do all in its power to help in bringing about this understanding, and through its free employment offices to directly aid in bringing the job and the worker together.

"We have no direct means of making work where there is none, but we try to settle industrial disputes and bring about a harmony which will allow utilization of all the industries that can be operated under present conditions."

One-Sided

One of the difficulties in settling labor disputes is that so many people are willing to compromise, provided they can arrange the terms in their own way.—Boston Transcript.

A. A. JOHNSON TELLS OF FAMINE SPREAD IN SOUTHERN RUSSIA

Former Head of La Crosse Agricultural School Makes Investigation for Near East Relief

CABLES DETAILS OF NEEDS OF COUNTRY TO SAVE PEOPLE

Campaign to be Waged in Middle West for Starving People

News of famine conditions in the South Russia Transcaucasian district have been received in La Crosse from Albert A. Johnson, formerly principal at the La Crosse County Agricultural school, but now in the Near East making a survey of conditions for the Near East Relief. Mr. Johnson is director of the State Institute of Applied Agriculture, Farmingdale, Long Island, and has been volunteering his services to the Near East Relief during his summer vacation.

A copy of Mr. Johnson's cablegram on conditions has been received in this city by J. L. Pettingill, member of the board of directors of the county farm school. Mr. Johnson reports as follows:

"South Russian Transcaucasian famine conditions have not been exaggerated. Absolute requirements are three times previous estimates. Immediate action necessary to prevent epidemic of cholera resulting from underfeeding. To continue essential relief work already going on among children only, will require monthly for Caucasus area alone 225 tons of flour, 53 tons of beans and 28 tons of barley.

"If work is to meet even partial requirements in present emergency due to Russian crop failure we must have minimum 300 tons of flour additional monthly. This includes but one of the Near East Relief areas. The committee is depending upon the continued generosity of American farmers to supply from surplus grain at harvest time, sufficient food to carry these orphan children through the coming winter. Relief also urgently needed for increasing multitude of unfortunate refugees impoverished and kept in prolonged exile by continual warfare."

Detailed plans of the general relief work to be conducted this fall by the Near East Relief, which is to open a grain campaign in the grain states of the middle west, will be announced shortly from the national headquarters of the Near East Relief in New York.

We go where we're expected."

THE CRAZY QUILT BY AHERN

SERVANTS HONORED FOR LONG SERVICE IN ONE HOUSEHOLD

Medals Awarded to Over Six Hundred by French Ministry of Labor

PARIS.—French housekeepers, like those of other countries, are complaining that there are no servants to be had these days and that those there are are good for very little and refuse to stay long in the same household.

Their pessimistic declarations are somewhat controverted by a list of 624 names that appear in the official Journal of men and women (far more than men) to whom silver-gilt and silver medals have been awarded by the ministry of labor, in recognition of their long services in the same household. Thirty years is the minimum time to qualify for one of these medals which gives the wearer the right to decorate his or her buttonhole with a ribbon, red, white and blue in horizontal stripes.

The record holder on this list is Mademoiselle Levasseur who has been 71 years with the same employer. Silver-gilt medals are awarded to 44 and silver to 580. Typical entries may be quoted, taken at random:

Mademoiselle Andrieux (Marie), Paris, 50 years with the family Delaporte.

M. Delpove (Michael Joseph), Paris, 54 years with M. Cassel.

Madame Gelger (Colette), Paris, 50 years with Madame Ray.

There are many instances where husband and wife have served together in the same family, as for instance:

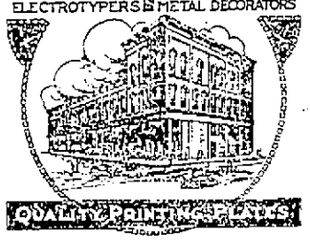

M. Mosnier (Jean), 37 years with Madame Escot.

Madame Mosnier (Jeanne), 34 years with Madame Escot.

The hardest thing to remember is to forget trouble.

WISCONSIN HAS NO PLACE FOR KU KLUX KLAN SAYS BLAINE

Pledges State Opposition to Organization if Law is Violated

EXPRESSES DOUBT THAT ANY TRUE BADGER WILL JOIN

Petitions to Oppose the Order Received by Governor

MADISON, Wis.—Pledge was made by Governor John J. Blaine today in a letter to Mayor Daniel W. Hoan, of Milwaukee, that if the Ku Klux Klan in Wisconsin, "or its membership, violates the law, the entire power of the state will be used to protect the people in their liberty and their security."

The governor has received a petition signed by a large number of Milwaukee citizens and another signed by Major J. G. Joachim of Kenosha, in which it is urged that he use his influence to prevent the organization of the Klan in Wisconsin.

"With such a record as the Ku Klux Klan had during the period following the Civil war, and stepped in crime as the Ku-Klux Klan was, do you think that any liberty loving, law-abiding sensible citizen of Wisconsin is going to join an order that is alleged to be a counterpart of the Klan of rebel days, if in fact it is," the governor says in his letter.

"I cannot engage in the presumption that the Klan will engage in violence or crime. I must indulge them the same presumption under our constitution that is granted others.

"However, permit me to say that as governor, I must make the pledge that if it and its membership violate the law, the entire power of the state will be used to protect the people in their liberty and their security.

"I must also suggest that the commission of any overt act or any violence by members of any organization may, as a legal conclusion, implicate and hold guilty the entire membership, if a general conspiracy is proven.

"If the Ku Klux Klan of today is like the Ku Klux Klan of rebel days, it has no place in Wisconsin."

MAY RECALL U. S. TROOPS FROM RHINE

Germany such as newsprint paper occupy the attention of industrial leaders here. Satisfaction over the simplicity and straightforwardness of the American treaty is generally expressed in commercial circles, where belief is expressed that the same "reasonableness" will characterize the United States in later negotiations.

Count Ernst von Reventlow, chief editorial writer on the staff of the Deutsche Tages Zeitung, makes a virulent attack on the treaty and calls on the nationalists to refuse to support its ratification. He declares the United States rendered France "an inestimable service" in arranging for the treaty and also charges Chancellor Wirth with a "lack of dignity" in failing to reject the American demands.

Press Not Enthusiastic

The nationalistic press, aside from greeting the circumstances that a state of peace has been restored between the United States and Germany, Friday accorded the treaty signed here only a lukewarm reception. Its comments were severely restricted to a "wait and see" attitude.

Comparing the Versailles and Berlin treaties, the Tageblatt, liberal, arrives at the conclusion that the latter document does not represent a dictated peace but is the result of negotiations carried on by contracting parties enjoying equal rights.

"The new instrument," says this newspaper, "breathes the spirit of sober-minded, calmly calculating business men, who chiefly were concerned about the practical side of the interests involved. This spirit is the best guarantee for the speedy cementing of friendly relations."

Vorwaertz, the Socialist organ, believes the negotiations just concluded reveal an American understanding for Germany's physical and psychical needs and that they were carried on in a spirit of conciliation and accommodation."

Briand Approves

PARIS.—Premier Briand has read a virtually complete text of the treaty of peace between the United States and Germany and the French foreign office considers that nothing in the treaty should disturb France or affect her position, it is announced here. The foreign office believes Germany will have no reason to believe that the United States will be other than friendly to France.

MONOGRAM 'EM GIRLS

In those days of short skirts and long skirts, it will not be necessary to look up, in order to recognize your friends—if a new fad, introduced in Chicago, takes the country by storm.

Monogramed hosiery—that's it! Your initials are supposed to be embroidered at the ankle, but there are no set rules.

And the new fad, no doubt, would be a great help to the laundry worker and cut down the number of missent stockings.

If the initial move, made in Chicago, spreads, don't be surprised to hear folks on the street remark:

"Oh, gee, here comes O. G.," or "I see I. C. is back in town."

At midnight a luncheon was served.

SAYS IRELAND CANNOT LEAVE THE EMPIRE

understandings and achieve a partnership as honorable to Ireland as to the other nations of which the commonwealth consists.

"But when you argue that the relations of Ireland with the British empire are comparable to those of Holland or Belgium with the German empire I find it necessary to repeat once more that these are promises that no British government, of whatever complexion, can accept.

Allegiance to Crown

"In demanding that Ireland be treated as a separate sovereign power with no allegiance to the crown or no loyalty to the sister nations of the commonwealth, you are advancing claims which the most famous national leaders of Irish history from Pratten to Parnell and Redmond explicitly disowned, Pratten in his famous phrase declared: 'The ocean protests against the separation of the sea against the union.'

"Daniel O'Connell, the most eloquent, perhaps, of all the spokesmen of the Irish national cause, protested thus in the house of commons in 1830. 'Never did a monarch receive more undivided allegiance than the present king from the men in Ireland who agitate a repeal of the union. Never to their grosser calumny than to assert that they wish to produce separation between the two countries never their greater mistake than to suppose that we wish to dissolve the connection.'

Old Appeal Cited

"And in a well known letter to the Duke of Wellington in 1845 Thomas Davis, a fervent exponent of ideals of young Ireland, wrote: 'I do not want you to repeal the act. I want you to retain the imperial parliament, with us the imperial power. I ask you to give Ireland a senate of some sort selected by the people in part or in whole, for levying customs, excise and other taxes, making roads, harbors, railways, canals, and bridges; encouraging manufacturers, commerce, agriculture, and fisheries; settling poor laws, tithes, tenures, grand juries, and franchises; giving vent to ambition and opportunities for knowledge, restoring absentees securing work and diminishing poverty, crime ignorance, and discontent. This, were I an Englishman, I should ask for England besides the imperial parliament. So would I for Wales were I a Welchman, for Scotland were I a Scotchman, and this I ask for Ireland.'

Playing With Phrases

"The British government has offered to Ireland all that O'Connell, Thomas, and Davis asked and more, and we are met only by the unqualified demand that we recognize Ireland as a foreign power. It is playing with phrases to suggest that the principle of government by the consent of the governed compels recognition of that demand on our part, or that in repudiating it we are straining geographical and historical consideration to justify claims to ascendency over the Irish race.

Limitations Necessary

"There is no political principle, however clear, that can be applied without regard to the limitations imposed by physical and historical facts. Those limitations are as necessary as the very principle itself to the structure of every free nation. To deny them would involve the dissolution of all democratic states.

"It is on these elementary grounds that we have called attention to the governing force of the geographical propinquity of the two islands and their long historic associations despite the great differences of character and race. We do not believe permanent reconciliation of Great Britain and Ireland ever can be attained without recognition of their physical and historical interdependence, which makes complete political and economic separation impractical for both.

Quotes Lincoln

"I cannot better express the British standpoint in this respect than in the words to the northern and southern states by Abraham Lincoln in his first inaugural address. They were spoken by him on the brink of an American civil war which he was striving to avert:

"'Physically speaking, we cannot separate; we must not remove our respective sections from each other, nor build an impassable wall between them—it is impossible, then, to make that intercourse more advantageous or more satisfactory after separation than before. Suppose you go to war; you cannot fight always, and when after much loss by both sides and no gain to either, you cease fighting, the identical old questions as to terms and intercourse are again upon you.'

"I do not think it can be reasonably contended that the relations between Great Britain and Ireland are any different case. I thought I had made that clear, both in my conversations and in my two subsequent communications. We cannot discuss a settlement which involves, refusal on the part of Ireland to accept our invitation to a free, equal and loyal partnership in the British commonwealth under one sovereign.

"We are reluctant to precipitate the issue, but must point out that a prolongation of affairs is dangerous. Action is being taken in directions which, if continued, would prejudice the truce and must ultimately lead to its termination. This indeed would be deplorable.

"Whilst therefore we are prepared to make every allowance as to time which will advance the cause of peace we cannot prolong a mere exchange of notes. It is essential some definite and immediate progress must be made toward a basis upon which further negotiations usefully can proceed. Your letter seems to us unfortunately to show no such progress.

Proposes Meeting

"In this and my previous letters I have set forth considerations which must govern the attitudes of his majesty's government in any negotiations they undertake. If you are prepared to examine how far these considerations can be reconciled with the aspirations you represent I shall be happy to meet you and your colleagues. I am, sir, yours faithfully,

"D. LLOYD GEORGE."

Press Approves

Newspapers Saturday generally approved of the prime minister's reply and expressed satisfaction that Mr. Lloyd George had declared he was willing to continue negotiations. The Morning Post, which maintained the old conservative view, urged the Sinn Fein leaders to recognize the unalterable stand for union which had been made by the government and advised that terms be reached on that basis.

Mr. De Valera was told that he was "discussing the situation in the spirit of an impracticable doctrinaire."

"Until Mr. De Valera descends to earth from the cloudy heights," the newspaper continued, "no progress is possible. He has assured Great Britain that he has not the slightest desire to renew hostilities and that not a shot will be fired unless the Sinn Fein wills it, but it is doubtful if otherwise, he correctly interprets the opinion of the majority of his followers. It might be suggested that if the refusal of the Dail to accept the British offer was submitted to the decision of the Irish people, it would not be indorsed."

"The time has passed by," said The Times, "when the reiteration of the differences between the English and Irish viewpoints can serve a useful purpose. The time has come when if there is to be a peace these differences must be taken for granted. When the Sinn Fein understands this fact the hour for further negotiation will have arrived."

Irish Parliament Meets

DUBLIN.—By The Associated Press.—Members of the Irish republican parliament met at the Mansion house here Saturday to consider the situation which has developed from the firm stand of Premier Lloyd George relative to a settlement of the Irish controversy. The message from the Prime minister arrived here Friday night and its intimation that the British government would not consider any unreasonable delay in continuing negotiations caused some apprehension among the people. Leaders of the Dail Eireann and members of the cabinet of Eamon De Valera appeared, however, not to consider that the situation had become any more delicate than it had been since the exchanges began.

Commenting on the letter from Lloyd George, the Freeman's Journal said: "In our opinion the prime minister's latest communication bears the construction which Jan C. Smuts, premier of the South African union, put upon the original offer from the British government."

The Irish Independent urged the premier to readjust or modify the conditions to which the Irish leaders have taken exception and said the alternative would be a renewal of war "on a scale that would appal humanity and would ultimately discredit and disgrace England."

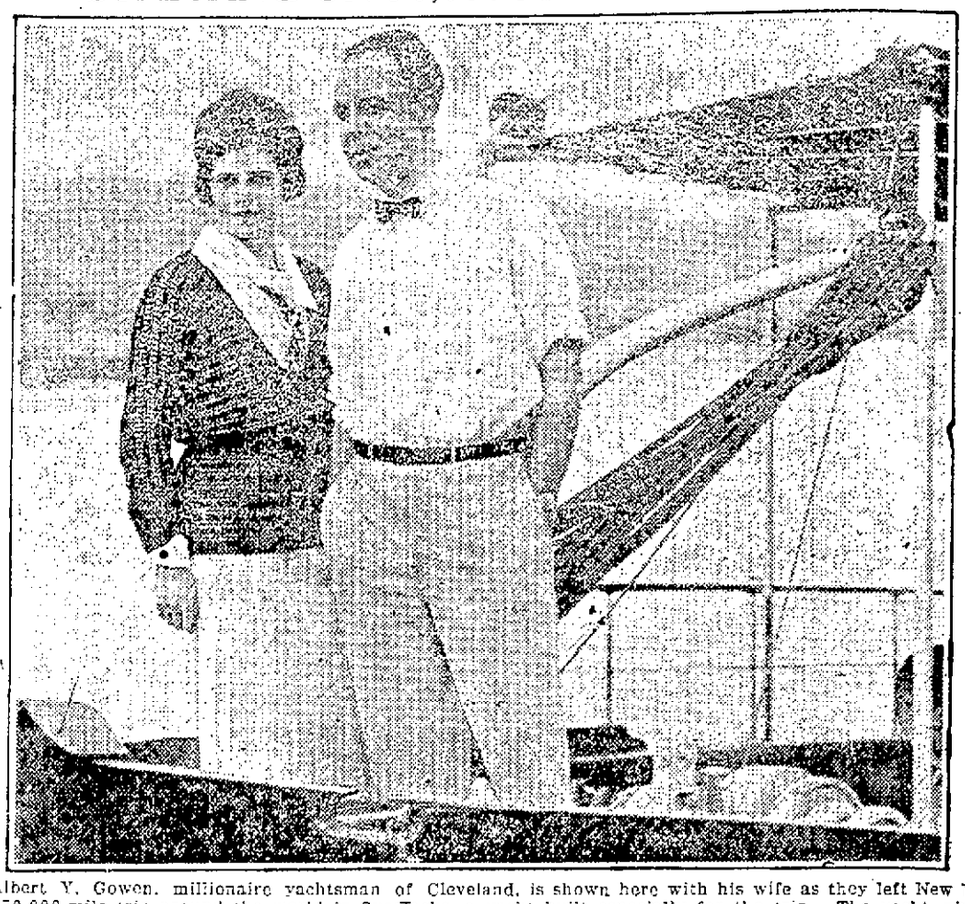

"With the will to make peace on both sides," the newspaper said, "it ought to be possible to arrive by a conference at a basis upon which a settlement that is honorable and satisfactory to both sides could be effected."

STOCKS REACTIONARY

Recoveries of Early Trading Give Way and Gains Are Cancelled

NEW YORK—Saturday's brief session of the stock market began with a continuance of Friday's rebound on sort covering. Leaders extended their recoveries by one or two points. Dealings were largely professional, however, and the absence of public support occasioned fresh selling in which many gains were cancelled. United States Rubber common and preferred led the reaction at a new low record. Mexican Petroleum and General Asphalt became heavy and Sugar and Tobacco issues also yielded. New Haven lost almost two points and the list developed further backward tendencies in the final dealings. The close was heavy. Sales approximated 250,000 shares.

Further reduction of the extensive short interests occured at the opening of the stock market. Oils, motors, equipments and junior rails featured the more important gains. Pan-American Petroleum, Houston Oil, Studebaker and Pressed Steel Car rose one to almost two points. Mexican Petroleum lost one point at the outset, but soon made more than full recovery. Steel Foundry, General Electric, Tobacco Products, Missouri Pacific and Chesapeake and Ohio also improved. North American led the utilities, rising two points on approval of the company's increased capital issue.

EASTERN CLUB OWNER SUES BORCHERT AND MILWAUKEE CLUB

Benjamin Moulton, Providence, R. I., Starts Suit for Amount of $4,250

SUIT IS OUTGROWTH OF SALE OF ALEX GASTON

Moulton Contends Amount is Due by Agreement

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Suit was started Friday against Otto Borchert and the Milwaukee American Association Baseball club for $4,250 by Benjamin P. Moulton, owner of the Providence, R. I., Baseball club. The suit is the outgrowth of the sale of Catcher Alex Gaston to the New York Giants last fall. Mr. Moulton contends that he has the amount coming as the result of an agreement with Borchert made January 15, 1920.

At that time Moulton sent Gaston, Joe Hauser, Clarence Forsythe and Art Reinhardt to the Milwaukee club, the contract calling for $2,500.

It is contended that a side agreement was made whereby Moulton was to receive one-half the sum realized by the Milwaukee club from the sale of any of these players to another club.

Following the Gaston sale, October 10, 1920, a check for $3,250 was sent to Moulton by Mr. Borchert. No statement of the amount realized was made. Mr. Moulton now alleges that he has information that the Giants paid $15,000 for Gaston under an agreement whereby $7,500 was paid in cash and three players worth $2,500 more were to be turned over to the Milwaukee club. In the event these players were not delivered, $2,500 each was to be paid.

Mr. Moulton also asks that an accounting be made for the other three men. He has no information as to what was realized from them, he says.

The $4,250 asked in the suit, is the difference between the amount of the check sent last October and the $7,500 cash that, it is asserted, was paid for Gaston.

Babe Ruth Trophy Nearly Wrecks Team Play At St. Joseph's Athletic Club

CHICAGO, Ill.—Babe Ruth, wrecker of home run statistics, has just about wrecked the team play of the amateur nine of the St. Joseph Athletic club of Downer's Grove, a Chicago suburb.

This team, composed of boys of St. Joseph's parish, recently was presented with a brand new league ball autographed by the home run king.

"I usually put my trade mark on a ball with 'Old Betsy,'" wrote Babe in forwarding the trophy to the boys.

Ruth suggested that the ball be used to stimulate batting and that it be forwarded to the member of the team who made the greatest number of home runs.

That's where the wrecking came in, for now the bunt and the sacrifice hit are taboo and every time a batter comes up he thinks about the Babe Ruth prize, takes air and tries to hit the ball over the fence in approved Ruth style. Incidentally, not a base on balls has been accepted since the Ruth Trophy was received.

Fluke Hits by Red Sox Defeat Sox, 5 to 4

CLEVELAND. — Although Mails was wild, issuing eight passes, he was effective with men on bases and Cleveland defeated Washington 6 to 3. Washington pitchers were nearly as wild and ineffective in the pinches, Erickson and Courtney having to be taken out because of lack of control. Bagby replaced Mails in the ninth when Washington had two on and one out. He passed Bush, filling the bases, and Milan then hit into a double play. Score:

Washington .....000 012 000—3
Cleveland .....002 030 01x—6

Batteries: Erickson, Courtney, Schardt, Acosta and Smith; Bagby, Mails and O'Neill.

St. Louis .....131 101 00x—7

Batteries: Keefe, Moore and Perkins; Shocker and Severoid.

Red Sox, 5; Sox, 4

CHICAGO, Ill.—Fluke hits by Boston, coupled with errors by Chicago, gave the visitors a 5 to 4 victory in the first game of the series on Friday. Poor base running and inability to hit in the pinches cost Chicago several runs. Pitcher Jones had to retire from the game in the eighth inning when Hooper stepped on his foot while running out a hit. Score:

Boston .....102 010 001—5
Chicago .....001 001 101—4

Batteries: Jones, Bush and Walters; Hodge and Schalk.

Yanks, 10; Tigers, 2

COLORED BOYS TAKE SEVENTH GAME FROM NELSON CLOTHIERS

Friday Evening's Contest Goes to Union Giants by Score of 10 to 2

Clouting Cole opportunely and aided by numerous errors in both the field and infield, Gilkerson's Union Giants easily won their seventh victory over the Nelson clothing company ball club at Copeland park Friday evening, 10 to 2.

Miller, new southpaw for the transients, was hit freely, the locals counting a total of eleven bingles off his delivery. Satek and Johnson were the heavy artillery representatives for the Nelson club, each connecting three times in four chances. Cole was relieved by Thompson in the seventh inning, allowing no hits and striking out two men.

The visitors stepped out after their runs in the second, third and sixth innings, counting a total of ten in the three frames. Singles by Woll, Cole and Satek in the second inning resulted in one score pushed over by the locals. In the fifth the locals ran in their final tally when Johnson led off with a single, stealing second. Smith and Thompson were out and Freng's hit over first brought Johnson to the plate. The locals figured in a double play in the second frame, Smith to Woll.

The visitors have won seven of the eight games played here with the local club this season, Schultz having defeated them on one occasion.

IN THE SPORT MIRROR

By R. L. BANGSBERG

In the article published by the governing board of the Nelson Baseball club justifying their acts of arranging for and playing return games with the Union Giants, the public welcomes the announcement that a city series between the La Crosse and Nelson clubs has been arranged, the first game of which is to be played on September 18.

It was this announcement, that plans have been made for a series of games between the two teams, which we have repeatedly sought to extract from the managements of La Crosse's two major clubs in an effort to quell for the time being, the increasing tide of demand for such a series on the part of those who have made the success of baseball possible.

The sporting department is highly in sympathy with a program of high class baseball, appreciating the fact that local fans have been given the opportunity of witnessing attractions easily included under such classification, but realizes simultaneously that this end might be accomplished to the financial advantage of local baseball talent and satisfaction of supporters through the booking of dates between the Nelson and La Crosse teams at this time.

Regarding the statement that "it is the practice in baseball to play the title game at the close of the season," we offer the intended interpretation of the article in Wednesday's issue to the effect that it would be mutually beneficial to the teams to play among themselves, attractions which would be equally as interesting to local people, rather than repeatedly turn over proceeds to a transient organization in the business purely for financial gain.

A statement of the sporting editor of the Winona Republican-Herald is to the effect that a mid-season series between Winona's two foremost clubs was arranged in the earlier part of the year to be played off around the time of the Fourth of July. Following a controversy of the two managements over matters which later became involved, the games were cancelled, calling to our attention that mid-season games are not strictly out of order.

FOOTBALL PLAYER TO PRISON FOR INJURY TO ANOTHER PLAYER

Frenchman Committed to Prison for Four Months and is Fined Six Thousand Francs

PARIS.—A Rouen court has condemned a football player to four months in prison and to pay a fine of 6,000 francs for injuring another player during a match. This is the first time such a sentence has been delivered in France and if the judgment is upheld on appeal it is believed in sporting circles that it will have a lasting effect on sports, as players will hesitate to risk going to prison for a game.

The Olympic Club of Paris was playing the Rouen Club (Association) and during the first half Aymard (Rouen) had to leave the ground on account of an injury to his eye after a collision with the international player, Langenove, (Olympic). The day was very foggy and only two or three players could see what really happened.

The Rouen Club lodged a complaint with the French Football Federation which found it impossible to obtain proof of misconduct against Langenove. Aymard then sued Langenove before the Rouen courts and the foregoing judgment was given by default. French courts always give the maximum penalty when they condemn any one who does not appear for trial but the sentence may be charged if the condemned man takes the case to appeal.

Langenove says he never received a summons to appear before the court. He was a student at St. Cyr Military College when the match was played, and was in garrison at Mayence when the case was heard. When he charged Aymard, the latter said: "It wasn't decent to charge me like that." Langenove said, "there is no truth in the accusation that I struck him with my fist."

"You see," replied the eminent sculptor, "it takes a long time to make a statue and we couldn't afford to have it left on your hands because the clothes were out of style."—Washington Star.

APOLOGIES TO K. C. B.

I started out
To buy a car
And heard so many knock,
And so few boost
For the
Other fellow's car,
I thought
They all were bad,
Excepting one
Which was rated bad
By most of them.
And so I decided
That I would try
That one out
To see
If folks
All told the truth.
So I took a ride
In this car
Over rough roads
And through the sand,
And up steep hills,
We went so fast
I lost my hat,
And so slow—
A mile an hour.
I finally asked
What's wrong
With this car?
And he answered
Ask the man
Who don't own one
Or never rode in one.
And he got my order
And it was
